

MELBOURNE INTERNATIONAL SHOOTING CLUB

About the project

Set in Port Melbourne, just fifteen minutes from the city centre, the Melbourne International Shooting Club will host the small bore and pistol shooting events at the 2006 Commonwealth Games.

A major refurbishment of the venue includes extending the 25 and 50 metre range, and installing new target systems on each.

The 25 metre range will be able to accommodate 32 athletes at any one time, with the 50 metre range having a 40 competitor capacity. The 50 metre range will get a new Swiss-designed target system that will allow for computerised scoring and results.

Lasting benefits

Even before the 2006 Commonwealth Games, the upgrade to Melbourne International Shooting Club is boosting Victoria's capacity to host major events.

In January 2005, the redeveloped club hosted shooting events for the Deaflympics and the Commonwealth Federation Shooting Championships in March 2005.

Estimated completion date

The project was completed at the end of 2004.
